

Alternative Funding Network

What is the Alternative Funding Network?

The market for SME (Small and Medium-Sized Enterprise) funding is changing radically, and provides both opportunity and risk for those seeking to be active in the market. The Alternative Funding Network (AFN) provides its members with intelligence and industry insight on the developing issues that really matter. This is achieved through a mix of exclusive industry seminars, regular commentary, research and secure peer-to-peer networking.

Andy Davis is the Programme Director for the AFN. He has a longstanding interest in business finance, previously as Editor of FT Weekend and more recently as a researcher, commentator and advisor on the game-changing developments unfolding in the SME funding market. He is supported by the Knowledge Peers team – experts at both online and offline knowledge sharing.

The AFN is a division of Informed Funding, a neutral platform that connects businesses to finance. Both which are owned by Knowledge Peers, a private, independent business

What are the benefits to becoming an AFN Member?
